Prestigious list recognizes vendors whose customers drive product development

“Assembling the list of ‘Trend-Setting Products of 2006’ is a year-long collaborative effort with editorial colleagues, analysts and, especially, users,” said Hugh McKellar, editor-in-chief of KMWorld. “Roughly 1,500 products from some 300 vendors were considered, and the ones listed here demonstrate exquisite execution designed for, and with input from the most important constituency of them all—their customers.”

Mobius customers, including leading companies across all industries worldwide, play an important role in setting product direction. “Our customers rely on ViewDirect to efficiently manage – and extract maximum value from – massive volumes of documents, records, e-mail, bills, statements, images, transactions, correspondence and more,” said Mauricio Barberi, senior vice president of marketing at Mobius. “Customer input is critical to our continued success as technology evolves and their needs change.”

Mobius solutions manage the entire lifecycle of information – from the moment it is created until it is no longer needed – and guarantee its long-term integrity and availability, both to meet the operational needs of the business and to ensure legal and regulatory compliance.

“We are particularly pleased to have received this recognition in the year in which we celebrate 25 years of delivering ‘first-in-class’ solutions that offer compelling value,” Barberi continued. “By integrating information across the enterprise and managing its retention and disposition, we help organizations reduce operating costs, streamline critical business processes, and protect critical information assets. We are proud of the role our software plays in making our customers more productive, more responsive to their customers, and more profitable.”
